Terms and Conditions

The undersigned agrees that Adams Exteriors is not responsible for delays in scheduling or completion caused by inclement weather, manufacturer errors or delays, labor disputes, or customer-imposed constraints. All balances are due upon receipt of the invoice, and if not paid within 30 days, Adams Exteriors may apply the maximum allowable interest rate, compounded daily, on the overdue balance. The undersigned acknowledges that Adams Exteriors is not liable for any auditory changes or perceived noises that may be noticed before, during or after project completion, as energy-efficient products can block certain sound wavelengths while allowing others. Additionally, Adams Exteriors is not responsible for existing or future home wiring, sensors, electrical systems, security systems, plumbing, gas or any other part of the existing home within or outside of the scope of our work. While Adams Exteriors intends to complete all contracted work without collateral damage, the undersigned understands that foreseen and unforeseen conditions of the home and/or working conditions may make some damage unavoidable, and Adams Exteriors cannot be held liable for any such damage. The undersigned agrees that they are responsible for obtaining all necessary approvals from the HOA, Historic District or Conservation District. Adams Exteriors will secure a city permit upon request by the homeowner or contractor. The undersigned acknowledges that due to the custom nature of Adams Exteriors' products and services, all sales are final and this agreement is irrevocable. In the event of project cancellation or delay by the City, HOA, Historic District, Conservation District, or any other party, including the undersigned, full payment will remain due to Adams Exteriors. Adams Exteriors is committed to informing customers of applicable city and county codes; however, the responsibility for selecting code-compliant products rests with the undersigned. Adams Exteriors shall not be held liable for any code violations.
